Discover AutoCAD 2023 in this video. Pages Friday, July 31, 2015 It's not too late to catch "Kung Fu Hustle," starring the "Lord of the Rings" John Rhys-Davies, at the Academy Theater in Hollywood. This action-comedy stars Rhys-Davies as a Hong Kong-born, American-raised martial-arts master. Two FBI agents (Chiwetel Ejiofor and Paula Patton) are after him, and the fight scene is actually in the movie. A helicopter gunship pops up to drop a load of ammo on his head. Ejiofor's character says, "In Hong Kong, dojos are everywhere, but we're trying to make ours an actual Hollywood studio." At the time of this review, the movie is playing at the Academy of the Arts in Hollywood. In addition to being martial-arts master and action-film screenwriter, Rhys-Davies also serves as a patron and patron emeritus of the Academy, and his movie-poster art adorns the lobby and outside. Academy members voted for "Kung Fu Hustle" as its annual choice for Best Film. The movie, produced by the Academy's Film Independent Program, is also the opening-night selection. The director and editor are Academy member Mika Tamano. A Patrons' Choice selection, "Kung Fu Hustle" is playing until July 30. The Academy is the largest and oldest film and theater organization in Southern California. For more information, visit academyofthearts.org.) = -6*m.
