Knowledgeable Guy Team. Software Support. Ownership. Make Free Software. Know Free Software. There are many excellent programs for PCs that are free software. But this is not like the computer version of The New York Times. For one thing, most of them are built around specific tasks. You can use them only as you use them. They can't be treated like a newspaper that has columns and pages, a business section, and reports of current events. When it comes to the business section, a newspaper that has its own columns and pages is easier to use and in many cases faster because it's a whole lot simpler to navigate. The Knowledgeable Guy Software Team is a company that makes software. We use software every day, and so are very aware of the pain it can cause. When the software runs on your computer, it's something you have to use. We're not blind to this; we do our best to make the stuff that we design easy to use, so that you can use it as easily as possible. But software isn't something you can read about; you have to use it. We know that's annoying at first, but believe us, it's for your own good. How to install Windows software If you see a web site advertising a free download of a software tool, like a zip file or an executable, you should always be careful. Normally, free downloads come bundled with spyware and ad ware, along with other kinds of malware. There have been situations where such downloads have infected your computer with viruses. So always go to a web site you know and trust. If
