I've learned that love isn't just a feeling, it's a choice. Love is a choice that I make to serve myself, and that is one of the most liberating things I've ever experienced. I'm just finishing my first year of being single, and I've learned to choose to love myself. I've learned to love me, and the people around me for who they are, not for what I can do for them. I've learned to love my beautiful body, and to love the light that shines in my soul. I have gained many things from being single and from being the "other woman" in my relationship. One of the most important things I've gained from being a "friend" is the understanding that when I see someone else in love, it doesn't make me feel like the odd person out. I've learned to love myself, and I want to encourage you to do the same. Loving yourself is an act of will, and one of the most freeing acts of will that you will ever experience.
