A record number of 53,000 music students performed for the occasion and the royal couple. They met there with the Minister of State and the Chairman of the Management Committee, Prince Albert of Yugoslavia, for the first time. In the Prévôté, the King signed the programme of his visit and the one for his first stay of the reign in Paris: 'Our guests: Paris, the capital of France'. He received a welcoming speech and after that a banquet at the Elysée Palace. From there, the royal couple left for the Château de Chantilly. 1915/18/02 - 'The happy conquest of the spring' On 1st May, the King went to visit the gardens and pavilions of the Château de Chantilly. The principal points of interest there were the Millenarian oracle, the royal cenotaph and the festival of the mistletoe. 1916/01/26 - A great multilingual event The King, the first person of his family in the imperial palaces and the first French head of state to visit the palace, welcomed the first Prince-Regent, Prince Charles. The visit was a great multilingual event: the King's visit was the formal opening of a French, English and German exhibition. 1916/01/26 - 'A beautiful monument' The King witnessed the opening ceremony of the Paris exhibition; a magnificent event during which he was presented with a great number of medal. On 14th May, he invited the first Prince-Regent to a field-day celebration. At an inspection visit, the King saw the construction site for the future statue of the Marianne
