Posted on January 30, 2014 "It is time to bring the humanity back to the Earth." – Rasputin, "The Light-Bearer", 1879 "In the last ten years, we have all seen the rise of a new consciousness, but we have also seen an impulsive and turbulent reaction to this energetic shift. We are witnessing the birth of a new humanity. What is currently taking place on our planet is a karmic process, which has been told many times before. As a response to the overwhelming influx of light, a new form of consciousness and identity has arrived. This new consciousness is rooted in the Oneness of the Christ. It is the Christ Light in full manifestation. It is a manifestation of the Oneness of humanity itself, not just a particular race. This consciousness is a New Aeon, for humanity as a whole." We are entering the New Aeon. "The New Aeon can be defined as a new and more evolved form of energy, which will replace the old energy of the old Aeon (also referred to as the old or dark Aeon). It is a new and more expanded form of energy which has already started to surface from the collective consciousness of humanity as a whole. It has already started to manifest in the collective consciousness of the human collective, as each human being individually, regardless of race, religion, country, or culture, is awakening to his or her own personal beingness." Reincarnation plays a key role in the New Aeon. The cosmos ca3bfb1094

I want to set the current project to a different project for the whole team. It should change automatically after the new project was selected. How can this be done? A: There is no setting like this in TFS. It's an information that you want to control when you open your solution file. So you'll have to do it manually. You can see the project name with a right click on the solution and choose open with. Q: If statement in python does not work as expected I have written the following simple python code: def fail_if(func, a, b): return func(a, b) def fails(f): return fail_if(f, 1, 2) fails('Hello World') # should return 3 Why doesn't fails(func) return a and b unchanged? I know, that I can use lambda or lambda *args, but it's really interesting why the if statement doesn't work like I expected. Thanks! A: Just for fun, here's a better way to do what you're trying to do: import functools def fails(f): return functools.partial(fail_if, f, 1, 2) And then you can do: fails(lambda a, b: a + b) A: Think about what fails(f) is actually doing. It's calling fail_if and passing in f, but ignoring the return value. f is not 3. It's not None because fail_if returns something. It's an argument, but it's not bound
