After more than 40 years of peace, Mount Hill was struck by a meteorite. An accident that some say is the result of a curse. Enormous gasses erupting from the ground, causing a massive explosion. Giant rocks rained down over the entire village, killing thousands and forcing the survivors to evacuate to the hills. After the explosions, it seemed like peace had returned to Mount Hill. But it was a lie. The survivors of the meteoric impact died of radiation, and their children were born with deadly mutations. Within 10 years the scattered survivors of the meteorite left Mount Hill and formed a loosely organized group. After 8 years, the survivors of the meteorite arrived at the walled off area. It seemed as if the government had abandoned them. The only survivors were those who hid up in the hills and waited. Then the mutant survivors started coming out. The government was too afraid to investigate. They thought that they were lying. Cursed!!! Mount Hill. It's a day like any other, Until the mutants find us. Surprised us. They raided us. Then chased us. We're catching them. The end is coming. The end is coming. The end is coming. That's what the government told us. The nuclear test site is going to explode. The mutant outbreak is going to be the end of us. Mount Hill is going to disappear. Then. You will find us. We'll be waiting for you. Praised be thy coming. Flap your wings, and watch as the radiation hits. Everything around you will begin to burn. About the Game How To Survive? You will have to survive a while in a challenging environment. (mupdf) $(ProjectName), a free software project which implements a replacement for the PDF format with the aim of producing high-quality documents which are readable on a wide variety of platforms. A notable feature of the codebase is that it allows the readout of native raster graphics formats alongside PDF. You can learn more about the project, and browse the release downloads from the project website, on our Project Page. Feel free to ask about the project if you need more information, or if you are interested in contributing to the codebase. For more information on documentation, visit the Developers Guide. Note: support for operating systems before Windows XP is still available, but we recommend moving to a supported (modern) platform immediately. A version of the Microsoft.NET runtime and mono are required to build and run this application: $(MinimumMSDKVersion) is required for much of the code to work, and is also the minimum required for use of the Microsoft-provided infrastructure in PDF documents. During development, we recommend using at least $(MinimumMSDKVersion) to ensure that you are getting your own build errors which are unrelated to the.NET Framework. $(MinimumMSBuildVersion) is optional. $(ProjectName) includes features that are not available in plain Mono 1.x, but this should not be a problem during development. However, if you experience difficulties with the provided version of Mono, you are encouraged to try newer releases. Building I've tried to be clear throughout the documentation on how to build and run source code. In general, we recommend building using the following command-line options: $(MDIVersion) requires that the MDIVersion.i.props file have been generated according to Mono's documentation (for the full listing please see the installer page). If not available (e.g. the Mono SDK was installed from a source that didn't preserve the props file), the MDIVersion may build and run using the assumptions and defaults set on the command-line, but it won't necessarily work correctly with Add-ins that rely on information in the MDIVersion.i.props file. —Alternatively— $(ProjectName) is designed
