Yes! You are about to play the game Monuments Flipper! We have put in a lot of effort to make this a fun game for everyone. We hope you enjoy our first title! Monuments Flipper is a board game with a unique setting and gameplay. You can play up to 5 rounds (i.e. games) in each location. At the end of each round, you can choose to resign the round, continue the round, or take a break for a short period. This allows you to reset the dice to a new starting hand (i.e. 3d6, 4d6, etc.) There is a clock attached to the menu, so you know what time you have been playing. Have fun with your friends, and good luck! Chris Monuments Flipper Play as the lead character or join one of the other characters. Play up to 5 rounds as them. Experiment with each character. Can you be the best of the best? A character is best if you can get the highest total in points, while also enjoying the game as much as possible. Characters (The game is designed to allow multiple rounds of play as a team of up to 5 players. If you have a team, do not use all 5 characters.) Seth Rockford: Lead character. George White: The mechanic with the dog. Marianne Hafford: The social character. Floyd Wilson: The Character who likes to experiment. Thor Thorstensen: The Character who likes to think outside the box. Gameplay Enter your character information in order to start the game. Select who your character will be as the lead character, the mechanic with the dog, the social character, the Character who likes to experiment, or the Character who likes to think outside the box. You can also select to "Create a new character" which allows you to create a new character. You can choose to continue on with a created character, or to start a new character. If you start a new character, you will need to go through the character creation process again. Select the number of rounds you would like to play in each location. (This varies depending on how the game is played.) If you select to play rounds in each location, you will start in location 1, then location 2,

Your spaceship in this game is the one you were born with. From your home planet, in the year 1997, you are on a mission on exploring the galaxy. *Discover the universe in this fun space game and come back to life in the spaceship you remember. *Each level is a different planet. *Select from four different powerups to survive. *Collect money to buy upgrades to your ship (powerups). *Earn bonus points for each time you avoid missiles in each level. *Hints in the game and the how to play page. *MULTIPLAYER: if you have the hardware, you can play with 2 or more players at the same time, in two different screens. *Online statistics with leaderboards and achievements. RULES If you do not play this game in the spirit of the game, you will be disqualified. So, have fun and good luck! How to play: The start-up screen shows the ship interior and a set of instructions. If you don't have it, go to the pictures page, click on 'images' or 'pics' and open the intro picture. When the intro picture starts, click 'A' or 'Start game' to play a different level and defend yourself from the missiles. The missiles come from all sides of the ship. Each side has a different speed and different accuracy. If you are hit by a missile, the screen gets a different colour and your ship gets damaged. If you survive a couple of minutes in a level, you will be awarded a penalty time. When the penalty time is over, you will start the game at the next level. If you don't have the above hardware, try downloading the game and check the pictures page. What's new in DOA6 Seaside Eden Costume - Mila:

[Review] Home Byte's review of the Creepy Tale 2 soundtrack came in the way of the Scott Pilgrim vs. The World soundtrack. And with the Scott Pilgrim release a little light on energy, I think it's safe to revisit the Creepy Tale 2 Soundtrack, which was released a month earlier, on June 13th, 2011. Home Byte and I decided to compare the two albums because the Creepy Tale 2 Soundtrack doubles the number of songs that are on the Scott Pilgrim vs. The World Soundtrack, plus has some new songs by ZUN, AtoZ Orchestra, and Samantha Lohman. The Creepy Tale 2 Soundtrack blends a wide variety of electronic styles into one album. Songs like Poison Breaks, the first 30 seconds of Circus, and the opening track Night Club make use of catchy electronic melodies that keep your attention and even have a lyrical touch to them, as is the case with Night Club's "Il est en train de se lâcher" (He's in the process of falling asleep). The more experimental style is represented by Deadly Forces, which consists of a number of electronic noise creations that create an atmosphere of the perfect Wednesday night encounter. And lastly, its last song, Night Circus, offers a different take on the Deconstruction style, which is a lesser known style in the electronic music genre, but probably the one that most heavily resembles home country's electronic-music dance floors. Each song on Creepy Tale 2 follows a similar pattern of beginning with an electronic melody or noise style, then getting faster until the drums, which aren't for the weak of heart or brain, go in to do their damage. Some may not realize that ZUN is one of the composers/arrangers for Night Circus, but he did arrange the songs on the album, with three of them being instrumental versions of the tracks he's composed. Each song is also ranked in relative difficulty, with Creepy Tale 2 being on the easier end of the spectrum, although Deadly Forces is a bit of a dive into the note-based style. You'll more than likely experience the 'crazed like a maniac version' of each of the tracks on this album, making the lesson complete :) Presented below is the complete tracklist for Creepy Tale 2, along with a download code for the album, as well as a ranking of every song on the album, which I found to be easier to do in iTunes. Enjoy and as always, keep

Hi, I'm Slay the Spire's Art Director, Derek Yu. Slay the Spire is a very ambitious project with a lot of things we're really excited about, so I thought it would be cool if we started off by showing you the overall framework of the game in a way that's easy to understand and digest. At its core, the game is an evolving series of challenges that you face on a journey to reach your name's namesake. You're a Spire, a tower of steel and stone and all sorts of other technology that stands above the caravans as they travel across this weirdly forested world. As your Spire grows, your city gets bigger, and all sorts of new things happen in the area around your tower. Every time you take a spire, each tower you bring in to the Spire gets stronger. That's the superficial gist of it. The deeper you go, the more layers and secrets you uncover. Eventually you'll have all these new tools to build with, and you'll have a whole new set of challenges to face. Let's talk about a few of those challenges: Spires You'll start out with a set number of spire slots to build with. Once you've started building, though, you'll be able to place up to three spires on the board. Every spire has its own special abilities, but the most important thing to know is that they all draw your personal energy directly from you. When you build a spire, it consumes some of your energy. As you continue to build spires, you will need to pay attention to this, or else you risk making your last spire too costly for you to sustain. As your Spire grows, new kinds of challenges will be unlocked, which you can face and choose to challenge yourself or not. You can get challenges from any new spire you build. To focus on one challenge, you only need to pay attention to that spire. So if you're playing alone, it's usually a good idea to focus on building spires, but sometimes your friends will come up with challenges and sometimes those challenges will affect things and you'll have to pay attention to that as well. You'll need to build spires in different ways: you can build them either by purchasing
