How can I do better? if (document.getElementById("sidebar").innerHTML.length) { var sidebar = document.getElementById("sidebar"); if (sidebar.text) { alert("The sidebar is not empty"); } else { // Do something else } } A: You are treating the element as a string: if (sidebar.text) Instead you should use innerText if (sidebar.innerText.length) Or outerText if (sidebar.outerText.length) Use either of these if you want to know the length of whitespace. Thirteen people were injured after a fire broke out Friday afternoon at an Edina apartment building. The fire began about 4:30 p.m. near York Avenue and Jackson Street. Paramedics and fire and police crews responded and found 13 patients, most of them elderly. One patient was in critical condition, an official said. Three other patients were treated and released, and

Applies to All Image Editor Older version 4.5 Size 1.33 MB Updated on 2015-04-25 Working with FXWitz Flash Photo Zoom is not that simple since it is an image editor but it is not much difficult once you know how to use it. Even though the main window shows all the options to edit the image, unless you want to change something special, you can skip all those controls and proceed directly to the next step. In any case it is advised to change the background template for the output result to give it a better appeal. Once the main interface has been left behind there are a few more controls that can be useful if you want to save some time but if you are not interested then skip them. FXWitz Flash Photo Zoom Shortcuts & Dialog Boxes: On the right part of the main interface there are three buttons called "Open in Editor", "Options" and "Close". Open in Editor: If you select this button and the image is already open in an editor the application will prompt you to save the file you want to edit. Options: Accessing this part of the application you can change the resolution of the output result and its JPG quality. The options available include the following items: Resolution: this can be one of three values: 75, 85 or 95 Quality: this is the maximum JPG quality. JPG Quality: this is the output JPG quality. Resolution: this can be one of three values: 75, 85 or 95 Quality: this is the maximum JPG quality. JPG Quality: this is the output JPG quality. Saving the Output: once the preferred settings have been applied the processing method has been selected and the file has been generated you can publish the result. The last item can be found on the right hand side. All the shortcuts are really simple. If you right-click the image of the main window and select "Publish" it automatically triggers the other ones. Storing the Output: once you have saved the result you can publish it on any website where there is an image publish option. If you press Alt+S you will be shown the Save dialog box where you
