To quote from Scholastic, the FAQ from the Party Geniuses on their FAQ page is here: How many kids can be in my party? You can have as many kids as you want in your party! Well... you're not just allowed to have as many kids in the party as you want... you're allowed to have as many as you want? Is the FAQ wrong or am I right? The answer is both yes and no. Yes, you can have as many kids in the party as you want (with reason. You should probably take care of existing kids, but we'll get to that later), but No, you can't HAVE as many kids in your party as you want. How do you still want to have more kids in your party? What is the maximum age for parties? The maximum age for parties is 8. Seriously? 8 and you are all adult, huh? Party on, party on! This rule is waived for party guests age 18 and older? You gotta age up, though. Why have the maximum age limit. For love. This is much more than a independence rule. Kids need to be able to keep up with all the rules and order as their parents, or they will be terrible at both. Secondly, whenever kids are playing silly games or having fun, they are actually learning rules and order at a young age. All children, no matter what age, have a natural desire to live in a system and keep order. This rule helps them do that. Thirdly, we need to get things to that our younger children can't do things that could hurt them. And possibly kill them. For example, a 4 year old can't yet get enough to jump on a table, a 5 year old is too small for a high chair, and a 6 year old is too old for jumping on the table. This rule will actually prevent common injuries that
