The effect of single and multiple gamma-irradiation on the state of the testicular microenvironment of CBA and C57Bl mice was studied. It has been shown that a change in the male reproductive system of mice (at the age of 5-20 months) took place after single irradiation. On the basis of the type of the reaction in terms of proliferative and necrotic-apoptotic cell death in the germinal epithelium, we have established 3 groups of the reaction. Multiple irradiation causes an increase in the number of cells forming the germinal epithelium but at different rates depending on the line of mice. In the group of mice with less than 60% differentiation of cells in germinal epithelium after irradiation, the number of apoptotic-necrotic changes was decreased, while in the mice in which the number of cells was more than 60% after irradiation the index of death cells was increased.
