Lonely Arts Features Key:

Explore the virtual city of Rendletown

Visit one of the most popular fast-food places in the world, The Red Valley DoubleoMall!

Journey through dangerous dangerous territory full of mutated beasts, bloodthirsty robbers, sociopath gangsters, sniper shooting, barricade jumping, mine cart running, rolling barrels and more

Discover a virtual city filled with a unique fantasy styled town with an original storyline

Deal with unique item ownership and battle with a colorful cast of unique characters

Several mini-games, turn-based battles and RPG elements

The game features an interesting story line with multiple endings and the good old "choose-your-own adventure" game. But things will get extremely difficult when your parallel Earth has been destroyed by Elementals. The only way to get home is fighting with an Elemental, which can only be done by unlocking the 30 available different weapons from the double-O symbol. This combat system is later explained to the player in a narrative, which is perfectly adequate for an RPG. Your combat experience is displayed at the lower left corner of the screen. If your health reaches zero, you can continue the game right after the battle. The first player who cheats has to die. So make sure you behave properly and play fair to win! The Legend of Crystal Valley has everything an adventure game lover needs: character interaction, spell management and classic RPG elements. This game will soon gain the reputation as one of the best action-adventure games on the iOS platform ever. Visit one of the most popular fast-food places in the world, The Red Valley DoubleoMall! Explore Rendletown, a unique virtual city full of quirky details. Visit the first giant fast-food franchise in the world, The Red Valley DoubleoMall. Here you can decide what you want to eat, how many chips you want, what you want to drink and drive a gigantic robot to get to a nearby enclosed elevator to be taken to your favorite level. Make your choice on the menu or pick one of the 20 available items, which all have various effects on your character. The doubleo-shaped first-century restaurant also features childrens' themed entertainment for your amusement, including a virtual roller coaster ride and a giant pipe slide, as well as a huge popcorn machine.

This game is free to play and each difficulty level has own unique costumer rating as well as scoring. If you want more, you need to pay for it. Trial period during which the trial access is granted is limited and can be deducted from the number of times of successful trial attempt. If a character will be revived after dying, he will lose accumulated points. This could stop users playing the game for several hours. Perks can be gifted to another player via gift thread. By gifting a perk to another user it will be added to their account, and the player will then be able to unlock it later. Perks cannot be bought with real money. You are being a ball in a maze. And you have to survive as much as you can. Each round of the game lasts until a ball touches your target. You need to grow in energy and money. You can use bombs to put balls out of the round and to steal other balls from the players. It's a point-based game. To get money, you need to keep your balls in the round. To get energy, you need to destroy balls and earn their points. Destroy balls to give you more money. Destroy balls to get money from the balls you steal. You can grow your energy to enable you to destroy balls and steal balls at the same time. To destroy balls, you need to find their solutions. First of all you get a random starting point. Choose one ball and press a button. Next ball should be "moved" to this point. Change the points of this ball. After the point is fixed, if you press the same button again, the ball will try to follow that rule. If you catch a ball and the points of this ball are enough to destroy it, you get points. And if the ball is on the exit point of the round, all of balls on the row with it will perish. The goal is to put as much balls to the exit points as possible. Some balls are set to burn if they will fall into the fire for longer than a number of seconds. You are also being a ball in a maze. And you have to survive as much as you can. What's new:

Selections Friday, April 28, 2012 It is the skills that I must increasingly develop to maintain a sense of normalcy that have become my greatest source of pride. You know the advice? "Have a plan." But that's not necessarily helpful when things start to go wrong. Once, after a particularly bloody day, another Mother at night asked about her friends who are Childbirth Educators. I said that they often seem to find themselves "at their wit's end." She nodded back. We both knew that that's where all mothers would find themselves. I said I have to remind myself of some simple truths. "That the worth of a person is commensurate to the kindness of their soul. That pain won't last forever. That loving someone will get you to the other side of the gorge in one piece. And that even if you don't agree with the doctor, you have his or her best interest at heart." What I said is true. It's only by practicing that it all becomes easier to take. Which means, by default, that it becomes easier to slip. I was recently threatened with expulsion from the Midwives College because I was unable to attend a class on the living dead. To me, that's not a problem -- it's the class on the living dead that invited me to quit. I quite like zombies, but I am not a fan of the idea of dealing with the living dead. And yet, I find myself out picking 'round sorghum stubble in the morning, haunting the highways at dusk, and wondering just where I will encounter my next body before I clock out. Saturday, November 10, 2010 They are old words: a worn, beaten coin that flings themselves limp, tumbling through the air; flat on the gutter, skipping along the gutter, dissolving in the storm; tossed up and dusted, huddled down for the night. Friday, November 09, 2010 So this week's assignment suggested that one's gifting entails not only the spirit of giving but also the spirit of taking. And that's entirely true, of course. A charity is a paradox - everyone wants to give money to the poor, but the real joy comes from taking it from the rich. We need the challenge of coming up with creative ways to take and save. Art serves as a good model. And, in fact, I'm working on several
