The SQL Server 2005 instance is not used by any other SQL Servers in the organization. The SQL Server Configuration Manager says that all connections using current logins are successful. However, when I log into SQL Server 2005 instance and open "SQL Server Management Studio - Query - Security" - the list of "All Logins" shows no member named "NameOfCurrentLogin" or "UserID". Also, all client computers running SQL Server Manager show an authentication failed error when I try connecting to the Server via OLEDB. How can I fix this? A: Right-click on the server, and select properties, then click on the link called properties. Go to the security tab There will be a tab called logins and a tab called windows logins. Change the authentication mode in each of them to windows auth. Restart the server, and try. Gaussian scaling in heterogeneous media of velocity autocorrelation functions.
