Dinoflagellate diversity in one remote region, northern California, USA. Dinoflagellates, protists belonging to the Peridinales, bloom in ocean waters and their populations fluctuate in response to the availability of nutrients. They are useful as model organisms in studies of photosynthesis, phylogeny, and drug metabolism. Most dinoflagellates are free-living, but some cells form photosynthetic symbiotic associations with photosynthetic marine invertebrates, such as calanoid copepods. The facultative anaerobic genera Gonyaulax and Prorocentrum are key models for symbioses, with chlorophyll b accumulated within the cytoplasm of the dinoflagellates. In this study, we screened waters from several distinct coastal habitats in northern California and collected hundreds of dinoflagellates using flow cytometry. We identified two species of both Prorocentrum and Gonyaulax, of which P. triacanthum was the more common species. Other species, such as Ceratium furca, Amyloodinium simile, Pacifigonyella piscina, Gonyaulax polygonatus and Hematodinium episodicum, were similar to those previously reported in coastal waters elsewhere in the world.

The total number of cells collected and analyzed was about 50-fold higher than in any previous study and revealed greater diversity than known previously. This survey demonstrated that different habitats may harbor different species of Gonyaulax and Prorocentrum and also demonstrated that the broad diversity of Gonyaulax and Prorocentrum found here may reflect specialization for symbiotic associations with copepods. El carro con el motor y el conductor es común a todos los futbolistas. Poco a poco esta apariencia se va agrupando en los equipos de fútbol. La 'casa grande' en la casa del Barça es un ejemplo indiscutible. Cada vez menos en una directiva se trata de trabajar con los compañeros. En un hipermercado el f 6d1f23a050
