In the game, the player takes on the role of Carl Johnson, a San Andreas native from the Grove Street Families street gang. Written and directed by series creator and director Paul Haggis, the game is part of the popular Grand Theft Auto series. The game was the final game to feature Phil Collins as the main score composer, the first being Grand Theft Auto III. The game was also the last to feature a music album or a soundtrack; however, it is the first game to have a movie and a DVD included, while some of the other games have also had a single-player-only expansion released by Rockstar Games after the game's release. The game's storyline follows Carl's investigations of the disappearance of his friend Trevor Phillips, another Grove Street Family member, which eventually leads him to uncover the truth about the Grove Street Families and its involvement with the La Estancia drug cartel, which is said to be behind Trevor's disappearance and the murders of civilians. Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas was designed to be more realistic than its predecessors, with aspects of certain cars and weapons. The game was originally developed on the PlayStation 2 system by Rockstar North, and was only ported to the PC platform. Anecdotally, there is a common impression that the the box we were sent had a much higher tobacco content than the average e-liquid/e-juice. Just by looking at the carton in the photo, it clearly seemed like there were a lot more ingredients listed on the back of the box. Some people have suggested that it has to do with the fact that the flavors are very similar to actual cigarettes, so they might try to increase the nicotine with more ingredients in order to achieve the effect of a real cigarette and thereby relieve the symptoms. It is also possible that although we were sent a 25mg refill, this was a Qty1 nicotine strength. For reference, the usual refill concentration is around 5-10mg, but I don't know if any e-juice stores are able to currently provide anything closer to that. Also, I have no idea what the nicotine content of these flavors is, if at all, but nicotine-based e-juices are available in many different strengths. Just looking at the carton, the flavors appear to be very similar to the cigarettes advertised on the back of the carton, meaning that e-juice refills are a popular way to replicate the experience of smoking cigarettes, along with omitting the 4%+ tobacco content of those cigarettes. The average e-juice or e-liquid generally has 5mg or less of nicotine, and this is what I used to use in my vape pen. It is possible for people to have much higher nicotine levels, but there are risks with high nicotine levels. Yes, this is correct. I had to mention it as it's a common misconception. With the 5000W, I chose a 10mg refill. I'm not sure how much nicotine is in this flavor, but a 10mg nicotine level would be close to what you would find in a typical cigarette (and, in reality, the flavor is 6d1f23a050
