I personally like the less bitter taste better, so I usually only steep a whole bag of tea for 2 minutes; but you can always leave it to steep longer if you prefer. If you're taking a picture of your tea, feel free to use this picture as a template. And if you want a pretty way to serve the tea, you can garnish with honey to taste, or keep it simple with the lemon wedges and sugar packets. My next tutorial will be on how to make delicious teas such as Breakfast Cakes, Pancakes, Oatmeal, etc. in the coming months. About Annie I am a high school science teacher and aspiring baker who can never find time to make a proper batch of the food I'd love to cook. I decided to take over the world of cooking and teach everybody a thing or two about simple, delicious, low-cost food. MEET ANNA Hello. My name is Anna, but I'm most commonly known as the Weeknight Baker. I'm a science teacher, wife, and mom of two little girls. When I'm not working or taking care of the kids, you can find me in the kitchen cooking up something delicious. Read moreQ: What's the difference between submodules and subtrees? What's the difference between subtree and submodule? What's the best practice to use one in the other? Edit: What's the difference between the root node and the deepest node? A: Here is a good explanation on the devmaster site. In short, Subtree's are named branches within a module, while Submodules are just named folders. They do the same thing, it's just c6a93da74d
